Sometimes, it's not as important that you see eye-to-eye, as it is that you sit across the table and look your companion in the eye. Frank Lloyd Wright and Albert Chase McArthur passed the salt and pepper on more than one occasion, and went back and forth on nearly every decision. At the end of the day, they were the better for it and so was the Arizona Biltmore.

The inspiration for Frank & Albert's comes, as even both namesakes would agree, naturally and from the ideals that brought them together in the first place. A focus on local purveyors and resources, favorites and fresh thinking, indigenous artistic instinct and the passion for pushing all boundaries.

Despite their often rectangular penchants, the place is anything but square. Here we have an oven, grill and creative den for healthy discussions and diversity, awareness and surprise, and the expansion that can only come from experimentation.

Art. Architecture.
Community. Character.
It's all here for the tasting. Dig in.
